France has declared her unconquerable will in words that will raise the hearts and minds of the free world. His speech has a rare eloquence. He does not for a moment underestimate the grave character of the situation. He has the courage to tell his countrymen, and the ablies now bound to them more strongly than ever, that "exacting times and cruel hours" are coming to them. The Germans are again trying various means to sap the moral courage of the French. They confessed their object and explained the process within a few weeks of ahe notorious "peace resolution" of last July. Herr Dernburg stated biuntly that the aim of such manourres is "to break the home from of the enemy," and a well-known. Deputy declared that the resolution itself was intended to "paralyse the chemy war will." Accordingly, the Germans accompany the action of their troops in Champagne by sensiant hombing and hombardment of Paris. But is one method. As may be supposed, it as only caused the Parisians of all classes to set heir teeth more firmly than before. But, at its same time, the more invidious plan of a rewed "peace oftensive" is being carried out the German Press. The trick its somewhat ale. It can deceive none but those who wish be deceived. Presh from the terrible field on which the each and their Allies have battled for ten ya against fearful odds, asy The Times, the ed statesman who directs the destrines of rance has declared her unconquerable will in FAIL.

The enemy did not attempt to continue the offensive on a large scale yesterday. Their activities were confined to local attacks, none of which was successful.

The French Official states two attacks on the northern outskirts of Bois de Carleport were repulsed by machine gan fire, and that other attempts in the region of Autreches, to the east of Domieres, and towards Corcy, also tailed.

As the result of an attack, supported by tanas, te the north of Corcy the French lines were improved.

The enemy suffered heavy losses in attempts to advance at Chezy, south of the Ourcq.
